

ABSTRACT

The present invention is a small vase that serves as a static name card holder. The vase is lightweight, reusable, and can be removably attached to the edge of a drinking glass, wine glass, or similar utensil. Used in this manner, the current invention will tastefully and attractively, in a floral setting, display the names of people seated around a table.